BOARDING PASS

Getting an Alaska Airlines Boarding Pass online can make your airport experience faster and more convenient. Instead of waiting in a check-in line, eligible passengers can check in online, choose or confirm their seats, and access a digital boarding pass from a computer or mobile device. The process is generally straightforward, but travelers should complete each step carefully before heading to the airport.

When Can You Get an Alaska Airlines Boarding Pass?

Alaska Airlines typically allows eligible passengers to check in online before departure. The exact check-in window can depend on your itinerary and other travel requirements.

Before checking in, keep your reservation information nearby. You may need your confirmation code, passenger information, or other booking details to retrieve your itinerary.

If your trip involves international travel or special documentation, additional verification may be required before a boarding pass can be issued.

How to Get Your Boarding Pass Online

Follow these general steps to access your Alaska Airlines Boarding Pass:

1. Visit the Alaska Airlines official website.
2. Open the check-in section.
3. Enter your confirmation code or required reservation details.
4. Enter the passenger's last name when requested.
5. Retrieve your flight reservation.
6. Review your itinerary and passenger information.
7. Follow the check-in instructions.
8. Confirm your seat if applicable.
9. Complete any required travel-document information.
10. Select the option to access or save your boarding pass.

After completing check-in, you may be able to display the boarding pass digitally or print a physical copy.

Using a Mobile Boarding Pass

A mobile boarding pass can be a convenient option for travelers who prefer not to carry printed documents. Once your check-in is complete, you can access the boarding pass on your smartphone if the option is available for your itinerary.

Before leaving for the airport, make sure your phone is sufficiently charged. It is also a good idea to save the boarding pass where you can access it easily, particularly if you expect limited internet connectivity at the airport.

Keep your identification and other required travel documents available because a boarding pass does not replace government-issued identification or other required documentation.

Can You Print Your Alaska Airlines Boarding Pass?

Passengers who prefer a paper document can generally print their boarding pass after completing eligible online check-in. A printed boarding pass can be useful if you are concerned about your phone battery or prefer having a physical copy.

Check that the barcode or QR code is clear and easy to scan. Avoid folding the boarding pass directly across the barcode.

If you cannot print your pass at home, airport check-in options may be available depending on your departure location and circumstances.

What If You Cannot Get a Boarding Pass Online?

Sometimes passengers may be unable to receive a boarding pass online. This can happen when additional document verification is required, the itinerary has special conditions, or the airport has specific procedures.

If you cannot complete online check-in, follow the instructions provided by Alaska Airlines and arrive at the airport with enough time to complete the required process.

Passengers traveling internationally should allow additional time because travel-document checks can take longer.

Tips for a Smooth Check-In

A few simple preparations can make accessing your boarding pass easier:

- Check in as early as permitted.
- Keep your confirmation information accessible.
- Verify your flight date, time, and airport.
- Confirm that your passenger information is correct.
- Charge your smartphone before traveling.
- Save a digital copy of your boarding pass.
- Print a backup copy if preferred.
- Keep your identification and travel documents ready.
- Arrive at the airport with sufficient time for security and baggage procedures.

If online check-in is unavailable or additional verification is required, follow Alaska Airlines' instructions and visit the appropriate airport counter.
